FIENDS IN HUMAN FORM.

(Taken from the Louisville Times.) Many years ago two men and three women made their appearance in Lincoln county, Ky., and camped by the Wilderness road, about a mile from Stanford. They gave their names as Harpe, and claimed to be emigrants from North Carolina.

One of the men was very large of stature. His countenance was bold, ferocious and exceedingly repulsive. His limbs were gigantic, bony and muscular, and his whole appearance revealed nothing but villainy and cruelty. His hair was very thick, coarse and of a fiery red. He wore no hat, and his few clothes were filthy and ragged. He carried a rifle in his hands and a knife and tomahawk in a broad leather belt fastened around his waist. He was the leader.

The other Harpe was the counterpart of his brother in appearance, except that he was very small of stature.

Two of the women, "Big" Harpe's wives, were coarse, dirty and of an exceedingly shabby appearance, while the other, the wife of "Little" Harpe, was equally shabby, but was beautiful and educated.

They remained at their camp on the Wilderness road two days and nights, spending the time in drinking and debauchery.

When they left this place they took the road leading to Green river, and the day after their departure a wealthy young man from Virginia was robbed and murdered in the Wilderness road, which runs through Rockcastle Hill.

The Harpes were at once suspected, and a party of armed men went in pursuit of them.

After encountering many difficulties on the way they came upon them while encamped in the bottom of Green river, Casey county, and forced them to surrender.

They were taken back to Stanford. The evidence against them was conclusive and they were placed in the Stanford jail. The district court being in session at Danville, they were sent to that place for trial. At Danville they broke jail and made their escape.

Not long after this they were heard of in Adair county, near the town of Columbia, where they murdered a child. This little fellow was walking quietly along the road carrying a pillow-case full of flour, when these inhuman fiends foully murdered him and threw his body into a sink-hole.

All along their path, toward the mouth of Green river, were the marks of destruction, murder and robbery wrought by this tornado. They murdered when there was no occasion to rob. A little girl was caught by them and killed.

One night a man named Stagall went to Robinson Lick to get salt. The Harpes dressed themselves in the guise of Methodist preachers and sought lodgings at Stagall's house. Mrs. Stagall, her baby and a lodger were the only occupants besides the "preachers" that night. The best room was given to the "preachers" and every attention possible was shown them.

In the dead of night the Harpes crept down stairs, after murdering the lodger, and brained Mrs. Stagall and the baby. They then set fire to the house and left.

They came across two men who had camped a short distance from the Stagall house. These men were returning from Robinson Lick, where they also had been for salt. The Harpes caught these two men and told them they were under arrest for arson. They shot one of them and the other broke loose and ran. He was soon overtaken and killed.

Stagall returned home that day and was almost overcome with grief and outrage at the loss of his home and family. He secured the services of Capt. Leeper, who was a powerful and fearless man. They collected four stalwart men and started on the search for vengeance.

When they arrived at the camp they found only the women there, who, upon seeing the armed men, warned the Harpes, who had gone into the woods to kill a traveler. The outlaws mounted their horses and rode off in different directions.

Leeper singled out Big Harpe and followed him, with Stagall, whose horse was not so fleet, in the rear. Little Harpe succeeded in making good his escape.

After chasing Big Harpe about nine miles, Leeper came within gunshot and fired. The ball passed through the outlaw's thigh and entered the horse he was riding, which fell dead. As the horse fell, Big Harpe's gun was wrenching from his hand and the horse plowed him to the ground.

Leeper ran up to where the outlaw was lying and found that one leg was broken by the bullet and the other crushed by the dead horse.

When Harpe saw Mr. Leeper coming toward him he became frightened and begged not be killed.

"Never fear me now," said Leeper. "Stagall is coming and I will not answer for him."

Harpe then begged piteously for Leeper to protect him.

In a few moments Stagall rode up and without uttering a sound, leveled his rifle and shot the wretch through the head.

The two men then severed the head and stuck it on a pole at the fork of the road where the lines to Henderson, Morganfield and Hopkinsville intersect, and to this day the spot is known as "Harpe's Head."

Little Harpe joined Mason's band of outlaws and soon became wealthy. Finally the band became so notorious that the governor of Mississippi Territory offered a reward of $500 for the head of Mason.

Little Harpe concluded to get the reward himself, so seeing Mason in a thick canebrake counting his money, he shot him and cut off his head. He carried it to the village of Washington, capital of the Territory, and claimed the reward.

Here he was recognized by a man who had once been robbed by Mason's gang and Little Harpe was at once arrested and placed in jail. He was tried, found guilty of murder and hanged.

The wives of the men were arrested at the time of the Stagall murder and placed in jail at Russellville, as accomplices. They were tried and acquitted. Stagall and a party of followers intended to murder the women after they were acquitted, but Judge Ormsby ordered the women back to jail. The sheriff locked them up, but, knowing that they would not be safe from the mob, took them out secretly after dark and hid them in a sink hole.

The next night he removed them five miles from Russellville to a cave, where he kept them supplied with food until Stagall and party left. Then the women made their escape. The women told the sheriff that their husbands were once arrested at Knoxville and put in jail for a crime they did not commit. After their release, they vowed vengeance against all mankind and said they would rob and murder until they were killed.

The wife of Little Harpe, who came of a good family, afterward married a respectable man of Mississippi, and they reared a large family, all of whom were noted for their honesty, sobriety and industry.

MRS G. R. WILLIAMS.

The Unpardonable Sin.

Mr. J. S. Hughes, of West Point, Ky., was in the city yesterday. Mr. Hughes has been over the State considerably and finds the sentiment for Parker very strong everywhere. The free silver men are for him to a man and the figures all point to the largest majority for democracy in Kentucky for years.

Mr. Hughes, besides being one of the best democrats in the country, was a gallant Confederate soldier. He was a Lieutenant in Grigsby's regiment, the 6th Kentucky which was until after the battle of Murfreesboro, under Gen. Wheeler, when it was transferred to Gen. Morgan's command.

Asked if he would attend the reunion of Morgan's men at Parks' Hill in August he replied "I think not. Since men who have gone over to the enemy push themselves forward at such gatherings to the exclusion of truer and better men, I take little stock in so-called reunions."

"By the way," he added. "I have for 50 years or more been trying to find out what is the unpardonable sin. My efforts were rewarded some time ago when a veteran remarked that it was a sin committed by a Confederate soldier when he voted the republican ticket."

Mr. Hughes is getting along in years. All Confederates are, but the fire that burned in his bosom in 1861 when he left home and friends to fight for the cause he loved, is far from being extinguished and it will never be entirely put out till he answers the last bugle call.—Lexington Democrat.

Taken with Cramps.

Wm. Kirmse, a member of the bridge gang working near Littleport was taken suddenly ill Thursday night with cramps and a kind of cholera. His case was so severe that he had to have the members of the crew wait upon him and Mr. Gifford was called and consulted. He told them he had a medicine in the form of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhea Remedy that he thought would help him out and accordingly several doses were administered with the result that the fellow was able to be aroused next day. The incident speaks quite highly of Mr. Gifford's medicines.—Elkader, Iowa, Argus

This remedy never fails. Keep it in your home, it may save life. For sale by all druggists.

Prof. von Plioe, of the University of St. Petersburg, is in this country for a stay of several weeks.

The packers are still confident of victory. Sheriff Barrett, when appealed to, declined to interfere with the plans of the police.

Casey seems to be the pivotal county of the 11th district in the race for the republican nomination for Congress. If this be true, Edwards would win if the election was held to-day.

KEEP THE RECORD STRAIGHT.

The following editorial in the Shelby Record, a splendid democratic paper published in Hon. George G. Gilber's home town of Shelbyville, is so good that we cheerfully give it the best and most prominent space we've got: "In the district meeting at Nicholasville last Thursday the resolution calling the Congressional primary was written at Mr. Helm's dictation, by his friends in conference; was offered in the District Committee by his friend, Mr. R. W. Miller, who said he did it at Mr. Helm's request, and was adopted without a vote to spare, with Mr. Helm's home county of Lincoln voting for it. Mr. Helm should have justice done him, whether he lives in Shelby or not, and that he made less noise about it, and had more to do with calling a primary than any other candidate, is shown by the further fact that his county voted for a convention the vote would have been a tie, with a warm personal and political friend of Mr. Helm's in the chair to break that tie."

Without Lincoln's vote a primary could not have been called. Therefore, in this county where there has been enough; and is yet enough to make democrats blushing, don't repeat the tale that Helm was "forced into a primary."

It's also an injustice to leave uncorrected the reports that contained the intimations that Dr. Frank Beard voted for a primary, to stop the fight to depose him as county chairman in Shelby. Dr. Beard had said a week before he knew of the ridiculous "snap committee meeting" that he had come to believe a majority of democrats in this county wanted a primary and that he would so vote. He could easily afford to do so at Nicholasville, after he had made such a spectacle of those who were there claiming his rights; after he had been recognized by the chair and had been elected secretary of the meeting by the whole committee.

Now, let's all cool off till after the primary. We don't know how all our readers are going to vote when they go into the booths October 1, but we intend to decide for ourselves, as they doubtless will for themselves these questions: Who of the candidates is the most representative of the democrats and people in this district? Who has put up the manliest, cleanest political fight from the beginning of this race? Who of them has entered into no combinations, and resorted to no trickery to get his nomination? Which one is the best equipped, all things considered, and can best be depended upon to perform the real duties of a real Representative in Congress? When we get the answer to these questions (and the same answer comes out each time we have yet worked the problem), we are going to vote for him, and won't want the shelter of a booth in which to do it."

FABULOUS claims have been made by all the republican leaders including Roosevelt, that the party they stand for has won the reputation of being a "trust buster" and all because of the dissolution of the Northern Securities Company, a suit which had been originally instituted by the governor of Minnesota. Now Roosevelt is anxious that Elihu H. Root shall accept the gubernatorial nomination of the republicans in the Empire State as a means of incidentally strengthening the ticket, but it is a known fact that Root has recently appeared as counsel for the securities company in a pending suit. Thus, the attitude of the republican party is one of deception and fraud. To the people they are against the trusts, to the trusts they are for them throughout.

Your duty to-day by going to your county seat and voting for Kentucky's ablest jurist, Judge M. C. Saufley, for Appellate Judge. No man in the State is better, or we might truthfully say, as well equipped for the position. His election to the high office would be a most worthy honor to him as well as to the State and the democratic party. Lincoln county is for him to a man, but don't let that keep you from coming to Stanford at 1 o'clock this afternoon and voting for him.

THE smallness of the accidental president of the United States is shown in the fact that he refused to permit a postoffice to be named after Gov. Vardaman, of Mississippi, because of an objectionable article written by the governor while he was editor of the Greenwood Commonwealth. Now what do you think of that?

THE Lexington Democrat has been owned by the present editor just two years. Before he bought it a stock company sunk nearly $20,000 on it. The paper is now a money maker. Two years more will make it a veritable gold mine.

SIX thousand dollars for six kisses is what an Indiana man had to pay under an order of the court, which suggests that he must have been a tremendous hard kisser or else the kisses were easily susceptible to damage.

POLITICAL.

Wisconsin Prohibitionists nominated W. H. Clark, of Ripon, for Governor. Judge Parker, the democratic nominee for president, has a brother who is a republican.

Henry G. Davis, democratic candidate for Vice President, cannot attend the Chicago ratification August 20.

Congressman Tawney, of Minnesota, has been selected to manage the speakers' bureau of the republican campaign.

The Fourth district democratic congressional convention of Missouri adjourned at St. Joseph after 602 ballots without a nomination.

Gov. Vardaman's Roosevelt editorial is hinted as the reason for official refusal to christen a proposed Mississippi post-office "Vardaman."

Against the wishes of their nominee for Governor, West Virginia republicans selected Parkersburg instead of Charleston for campaign headquarters.

It is given out that Congressman John S. Rhea will not be a candidate for re-election in the Third district. E. J. Hobdy, James M. Richardson and Nat A. Porter are candidates for the democratic nomination to succeed him.

Ex-Gov. Benton McMillin, of Tennessee, has withdrawn from the race for the U. S. Senate, stating that the sentiment is in favor of the re-election of Senator Wm. B. Bate and that harmony will now prevail throughout the State among the democrats.

At the county attorneys meeting at Mammoth Cave the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: James Garnett, of Adair county, president; W. P. Davis, of Pineville, vice-president; W. J. Price, of Danville, secretary, and John Graham, of Leitchfield, treasurer. The next meeting will be at Crab Orchard Springs, we are glad to state.

CHURCH MATTERS.

The C. W. B. M. will meet in the lecture room of the Christian church tomorrow, Wednesday, afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Rev. T. H. Coleman, of Danville, and Rev. O. M. Huey, of Stanford, closed a very successful meeting at the Hustonville Baptist church, which resulted in 14 additions.

In a speech to his congregation Alexander Dowd charged that some of the officers were misusing the funds of Zion, and that they were liable to be hauled up for embezzlement unless they made good at once.

Accompanied by eight armed members of his church the Rev. Herman G. Porter, pastor of the Methodist church Yorktown, Ind., has been preaching at night in the streets against the violations of the law on the part of saloon keepers.

Rev. J. I. Wills writes us from Harrodsburg to announce that there will be no services at Fairview church, near J. H. Carter's store, this county, during the month of August but that a protracted meeting will begin on the first Sunday in September.

MATRIMONIAL.

Miss Lottie Flanigan, formerly of Rowland, but now of Lebanon Junction, and Mr. E. C. Maden were married at Nashville July 27th. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Mary Flanigan and is a handsome and attractive young lady, while the groom is a fine young man and an engineer on the L. & N. Their many friends heartily congratulate them and wish them a long and happy wedded life.

A FRIEND.

Ex-Gov. and Mrs. W. O. Bradley, of Louisville, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Christine Duncan Bradley, to John Glover South, of Frankfort. The wedding will be of wide interest, as Miss Bradley is known in social circles throughout the State. She is a young woman of most gracious manners. During her father's incumbency as Governor she was extremely popular at the capital. Dr. South is a leading physician of Frankfort, and is a son of the late Barry South.

LANCASTER.

Mr. Wm. Burton, whose reputation as a stock trader is well established, is back from Martinsville, Ind., much improved and able to be at his business again.

Mr. O. T. Wallace, of Point Leavell, has rented his farm and will bring his family to town to reside. The difficulty in obtaining labor on farms is bringing many farmers to town.

The physicians of the town are trying to organize a stock company to establish a sanitarium here. Either the Dr. Herring or the Dr. Walters place will be used. If this project is carried out it will mean much to the town and community.

"For several years my wife was troubled with what physicians called sick headache of a very severe character. She doctored with several eminent physicians and at a great expense, only to grow worse until she was unable to do any kind of work. TO CANDIDATES.—The INTERIOR JOURNAL has adopted the cash-in-advance system as far as announcements are concerned. We charge only $5 for announcements for county offices but the money must accompany the order to insert them. This rule will be strictly adhered to in the future. EDITOR THOMAS, of the Liberty News, who has probably read a dozen chapters in the Bible in his long life of 40 years, makes this unkind mention of the good evangelist, who is no doubt better acquainted with Bible teachings than any preacher in Kentucky or probably the United States: "Rev. George O. Barnes, evangelist, has come and gone, and leaves the impression of being one of the most curious preachers that we ever heard. He delivered seven lectures at the Christian church to large congregations, which paid the closest attention to every statement he made. He preached that there were two creations, two salvations, three hells, three baptisms, that the millennium would begin in three years, the end of the world in 10 years and would be seven years in destruction. Many who heard him pronounced him a great fanatic, with very incorrect ideas of the Scripture. No doubt his preaching will cause many a sleepless night to those whose ears were tingled by his fallacy."

ONE of the most successful horsemen at the Crab Orchard fair was our townsmen, J. Carroll Bailey. He got six blues and two reds. His splendid saddle stallion, Preston, defeated J. T. Crenshaw's Kentucky's Artist, two out of three shows.

CHARGED WITH BASTARDY—A warrant was sworn out by Miss Lillie Harris, of the Soaper's section, charging Anus Oaks with bastardy, and he gave bond yesterday for his appearance next Wednesday week, his trial being set for that day. Sheriff Baughman arrested him at the Crab Orchard fair.

BEN HARLAN, colored, who stole a pair of trousers from Mr. H. J. McRoberts, the other day, is in bad again. He forged the name of Jerry Smothers for a $25 razor at W. H. I suffered with falling and con-gestion of the womb, with severe pains through the groins. I suffered terribly at the time of menstruation, had blinding headaches and rushing of blood to the brain. What to try I knew not, for it seemed that I had tried all and failed, but I had never tried Wine of Cardui, that blessed remedy for sick women. I found it pleasant to take and soon knew that I had the right medicine. New blood seemed to course through my veins and after using eleven bottles I was a well woman.

Mrs. Bush

Mrs. Bush is now in perfect health because she took Wine of Cardui for menstrual disorders, bearing down pains and blinding headaches when all other remedies failed to bring her relief. Any sufferer may secure health by taking Wine of Cardui in her home. The first bottle convinces the patient she is on the road to health.
